

Chateau Moulin Pey-Labrie 2006

Posted on 12 June 2013.

A Canon-Fronsac that, embarrassingly, I tasted a few months ago and somehow deleted the text of my note in the drafts section of our wonderful website, leaving me with only the score and the structure of the review. Anyway, they sent it again, which is fine by me and nice of them. First bottle was better than this one (cork problems), so the score remains the same, but the tasting jogged my memory anyway. Importer: DiscoverVin
Blackcurrant, raspberry, menthol and aniseed with a subtle floral/vanilla perfume. Medium bodied, fleshy and pencil/minerally, with fine grained tannin, succulent fruit and a fresh finish. So much to enjoy here. Rises above its appellation.
